REPUBLICANS DOMINATE AT SPRINGFIELD

Emmerson and Small Ride to Fair Together —No Speeches

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Louis L. Emmerson, Republican candidate for Governor will ride to the state fair today with Governor Small.

Republicans will monopolize the center of the grandstand, but there will be no speech-making.

Clouds and intermittent showers threatened all day. Headed by a company of cavalry the official procession from the executive mansion was to start at noon and arrive at the state fair thirty minutes later. All state officials will occupy seats in the official cars, and with them were to be the cars carrying the republican candidates.

Carlos E. Black, Adjutant General was in charge of the procession.

Mr. Emmerson, who spoke yesterday at the Knox County fair, came to Springfield last night with members of his party. He said this morning that the Republican campaign speaking had not started yet, but that the party's chief activity now was in touring the state, meeting republican committeemen.

Pleased With Meeting.

Perry B. McCullough of Lawrenceville, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, said the organization meetings now being held were very pleasing to all the candidates.

"Our organization meetings," he said, "are finer in spirit than I have ever observed in the Republican party. The meetings at Danville, Decatur, Bloomington and Peoria were attended by one hundred per cent of the precinct committeemen of the respective congressional districts."

In Dixon Tuesday.

"All the candidates made the tour and talked at the meetings. Another week of touring will come next week, with a Monday noon meeting at Galesburg; and night meeting at Monmouth; Tuesday day meeting at Dixon and night meeting at DeKalb, and a Wednesday noon meeting at Elgin."

"One of the interesting features of our meetings is the attendance and interest of women. About forty per cent of the audiences at conferences are women."

MRS. GEO. BEAL PASSED AWAY AT 8:30 THIS MORN

Beloved Dixon Woman's Funeral Will be Saturday at 3 P. M.

Mrs. George S. Beal passed away this morning about 8:30 at the family residence, 504 North Galena avenue. Mrs. Hattie Remmers Beal was the youngest daughter of Henry W. and Catherine Remmers, early settlers in this locality, and was born in Dixon. She had lived in this city practically all of her life. She is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Clyde Ross of Dixon.

Funeral services will be conducted from the family residence Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. Lloyd W. Walter, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church officiating. Entombment will be made in the Oakwood Memorial mausoleum.

Stabs Candidate For Governor of Southern State

Nashville, Tenn., August 22.—(AP)—Raleigh S. Hopkins, Columbia, Tenn., Republican nominee for Governor, was stabbed in the arm by John V. Jackson, a fellow townsman, during a meeting of the Republican state executive committee to canvass votes in the August 2 primary at the state capitol today.

The stabbing took place during a heated argument over a contest brought in Mr. Hopkins home district. Mr. Hopkins attempted to push Jackson off the floor and the latter struck with a pocket knife. They were separated immediately.

Physician is Lured To Death in Night

Pittsburgh, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Lured from his home in Carrick, a suburb, last night ostensibly to minister to a sick woman, Dr. Harry R. Dapper, 30, prominent physician, was shot to death, according to the physician's father, by a man who escaped in the doctor's car.

Henry J. Dapper, 55, the father, who accompanied his son and the unidentified stranger on the trip, was dragged across the head with a black-jack. He is in a hospital where his son died early today from a gunshot wound.

Police were mystified by the killing. Because of the fact that the young physician had no known enemies, they were at a loss to ascribe a motive.

Editorial

THE NEW BRIDGE

On Saturday go to the polls and vote for the bonds that will provide Dixon with a new bridge over Rock River at Peoria Avenue. Make it a point to vote, regardless of the pressure of other affairs, because your vote may be needed to carry the bond over.

Dixon is making a valiant effort at growth and progress just now. Many loyal and energetic citizens are giving largely of their thought and energy to advance Dixon's welfare. Your vote on Saturday will be either a boost or a knock for Dixon and for those working for Dixon's advancement.

The new bridge is needed to relieve traffic conditions, to insure easy communication between the two sides of the river, to allow expansion of the business district and to keep abreast of modern progress.

NO BRIDGE ARGUMENTS

In accordance with an established policy, The Telegraph will not accept or publish any new arguments that might require an answer from either side of the bridge controversy after this issue.

MRS. BRENNAN TO BE ACTIVE DURING FIGHT FOR SMITH

Successor To Geo. Brennan Selected But Not Made Public

Chicago, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. George E. Brennan, widow of the former Illinois Democratic national committeeman today accepted the post of regional vice chairman of the party's presidential drive committee. She was suggested for the position yesterday by United States Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, chairman of the national Democratic central regional headquarters in St. Louis. Meanwhile Illinois Democrats have caucused to determine who will become the Illinois committeeman and it is understood that an agreement has been reached.

Igoe Withdraws Name.

Michael Igoe, state representative, and aid to the late Mr. Brennan, it is said has withdrawn his name from consideration in respect for party harmony and good will within the ranks of all Democrats in the state.

The state central committee, had considered him as a successor but at the suggestion of Igoe and other Illinois Democratic leaders a new name, heretofore unmentioned in connection with the post was submitted. Party leaders have cabled the prospective national committeeman and before naming him publicly, are waiting for his cabled acceptance.

The proposed national committeeman is a wealthy manufacturer, and a non-Catholic. The consideration of a Protestant to succeed Mr. Brennan, a Catholic, in the party councils, the local and state committeemen believe, will aid in effacing any consideration of the religious prejudice which might be injected into the presidential campaign.

Wanted Witness in Election Probe is Found Shot to Death

Chicago, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Sought as a witness for the special election frauds grand jury, Leigh Di Bernardo was found shot to death in his automobile parked under a viaduct on the west side today.

Di Bernardo was wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Octavius Granady, negro candidate opposing Morris Eller for 20th ward committeeman who was assassinated on primary election day. Police began an investigation of Di Bernardo's slaying on the theory he was killed because he "knew too much."

The body, slumped down over the steering wheel of his automobile, was found by employees of a manufacturing firm who hurried out after hearing a series of pistol shots. The assailants had fled. Police were called and established the victim's identification by tracing the license number of the automobile and later having Mrs. Di Bernardo view the body.

Park Board Offers
Prizes for Water
Carnival Entries

In view of the growing interest in water sports in the local community, the Dixon Park Board to stimulate the interest offers silver trophies for both speedboat and canoe races at the Labor Day Water Carnival to take place at Lowell Park. These handsome silver cups will be known as the Dixon Park Board Trophies and must be won three years in succession to merit permanent possession.

These trophies will be on display in some prominent window in the business section of the city at the earliest possible moment.

RAIN SOAKED CROWD CHEERS AL'S SPEECH

Governor Was Disappointed When Rain Marred Notification

Editor's Note—The verbatim text of Governor Smith's speech of acceptance last night will be found on another page of this issue.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Albany, N. Y., August 23.—(AP)—Somewhat disappointed over the restricted manner in which his notification had to be conducted, but nevertheless happy over the way the crowd reacted to his acceptance speech, Governor Smith turned toward New York today to begin laying the foundation of his campaign for the presidency.

Arriving there late today, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee planned a visit to national committee headquarters to talk over with party leaders tentative plans for a stumping itinerary.

Outsiders Soaked

An uninterrupted rain, not heavy, but enough to soak through if one remained out in it long enough forced a last minute scrapping of the elaborate preparations made for Governor Smith's notification on the east steps of the capitol late yesterday. It had to be held indoors—in the small and stuffy Assembly Chamber where the nominee began his legislative career, 25 years ago. While touched by the familiar scene, the Governor thought sympathetically of the thousands outside on the lawns in the rain, and after running through the long outline of his stand on the issues of the day, including his advocacy of a modification of the dry laws, went out to the drenched but cheering crowds and thanked them from the bottom of his heart for standing by to the last to hear his message.

Surrounded by members of his family, his running mate, Senator Robinson of Arkansas and many party leaders and friends, the nominee delivered his acceptance speech to a crowd of only a few thousand that jammed into every foot of space in the assembly chamber. An emergency radio hook-up, however, carried the message to the crowds outside and to every corner of the land as it would have been carried had the ceremony been held outdoors.

Cheered Prohibition Stand

Tackling the prohibition question about half way down in his speech, the nominee, interrupted frequently by applause said that while he would never favor the return of the saloon and would stand on the Democratic platform pledge to make an honest endeavor to enforce the 18th amendment and all laws enacted under it, he thought a change from present conditions was needed.

He favored as an alternative a modification of the 18th amendment to permit the restricted sale of alcoholic beverages by states, if approved by popular referendum, and also a change in the Volstead act to allow each state to determine its own standard of alcoholic content.

"We may well learn from the experience of other nations," he said, adding:

"If Canadian neighbors have gone far in this manner to solve this problem by the method of sale made by the state itself and not by private individuals."

Had To Halt Applause

The Governor frequently halted the applause that rang through the crowded chamber by holding up his hand. Outdoors the handclapping and cheering greeted almost every subject he touched upon—as he promised to give the farm surplus crop problem his immediate attention, if elected; as he assailed the Republican administration on many scores, particularly on its Latin-American policy.

Girl's Body Severed By Train; Police Seek Murder Sign

New York, August 22.—(AP)—The body of an unidentified girl, about 20 years old, was found today on the Long Island railroad tracks in the Richmond Hill section of Brooklyn. The body was severed just above the waist.

Police are investigating to determine whether the girl was a suicide or whether she had been murdered and her body placed on the tracks.

Plane In Distress East Of The City

A large airplane, flying at a very low altitude, and apparently having considerable engine trouble, was reported shortly before noon today to be seeking a landing field about four miles east of Dixon. Several persons saw the plane barely missing the tops of trees over the Fred Hill timber along the route 2 highway and reported that the pilot appeared to be seeking a suitable place to make a landing.

Ends Visit to Mid-West Grain Country—Is Encouraged

BY JAMES L. WEST
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Another round of conferences with farm leaders today closed Herbert Hoover's three-day visit to the great mid-western grain country.

Aided in his personal contact with men who profess to interpret the viewpoint of the wheat, corn and other grain growers, the Republican presidential candidate leaves late today for Washington. There on Saturday in newly established headquarters he will take personal charge of his campaign.

Both in his public and private talks here Hoover has emphasized his belief that in seeking to relieve the agricultural industry, each of the dozen or more component parts must be treated separately. He has likewise stated his own purpose to have the federal farm board he has proposed, approach the problem from that basis.

Some Dark Spots.

Between the time of exchanging views with farm leaders, the Republican candidate has received varied reports as to the outlook in the several grain growing states. He has been heartened by information from Kansas and Iowa, but a note of pessimism has run through that from the northwestern grain producers in that section who just now are beginning to market their wheat crop, are faced with sharply declining prices and political leaders say this unquestionably has had an effect. However, they have expressed to the nominee their belief that these states will be found in the Republican column in November.

Is Strenuous Trip.

This journey across the continent from his California home has proven a strenuous one for Hoover and the effects of numerous speeches and endless conferences, day and night, are beginning to show their effects. However, he has taken to these, to him rather new and necessary features of campaigning, with a show of enthusiasm which has surprised even the closest of his admirers.

Snakeroot Poison Kills Four Persons

St. Louis, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Evidence of milk sickness, caused by milk of cows which had eaten snakeroot, have been found in vital organs of the four persons who died in eight days this month at Cabool, Mo. Dr. R. L. Thompson, pathologist here, announced today.

The deaths were at first attributed to some unidentified poison, and threats against some of those who died were recalled by Cabool authorities.

Terse Items of News Gathered in Dixon During Day

ROCKFORD HERE SUNDAY.

Next Sunday the Rockford Highland A. C.'s baseball club will come to Dixon to meet the Independents of this city on the latter's diamond on Eighth street and Van Buren avenue. It will be the first game of the second round of the Black Hawk league. In the half of the schedule just closed, the Independents tied with Polo with five games won and two losses. The Rockford Mutuals won first place with a perfect score of six games won and no defeats.

Ole Prestegard and Joe Lewald will be back in the Dixon lineup for Sunday's game. Prestegard has been out of the game for a few weeks with a bad arm, but has recovered sufficiently to renew his pitching. Reddish and Skelton are slated to do the battery work for the Independents.

FOR HENRY CHAON.

Henry M. Chaon of Compton, general merchant and expert trap shot who attracted state wide attention in the recent match shoot at Springfield, is the possessor of a fine present from the L. C. Smith Arms Co. As the result of the fine showing made by Mr. Chaon in the state shoot, he has received a fine trap gun valued at $250 from this company which he has been requested to use in his future trips to the range.

ON HOOVER'S ESCORT.

State Highway Officers Kenneth Church and Hal Roberts returned home late last evening from West Branch, Iowa, where they served with a picked squad of ten Illinois motorcycle officers, as an escort to Herbert Hoover, republican presidential candidate, at the homecoming celebration held in that city Tuesday. Five officers from the northwest Illinois district were selected at the request of the governor of Iowa.

TO GAME WARDEN'S MEET.

Deputy State Warden Henry Krieger has gone to Springfield where he is attending a four-day meeting of representatives of the Illinois department of conservation. The gathering of all game wardens and deputies of the state is being held in conjunction with the state fair and several nationally prominent speakers have been secured to address the sessions.

HASSELL KNOWN HERE.

Bert Hassell, pilot of the "Greater Rockford" plane flying from Rockford to Stockholm, Sweden, and for whom a wide search is now being made, is well-known in Dixon, having visited here on several occasions. In his early flying days, Hassell made the first delivery of Society brand clothing to the firm of Vaile & O'Malley nine years ago. Since that time he has visited in Dixon on several occasions and enjoys a wide acquaintance locally, all of whom are vitally interested in latest reports from the lost ship.

FAMILY FEUD.

Sheriff Ward Miller and several deputies were summoned to the home of Wilbur Smith, farmer residing southwest of that city, who reported that he was being assaulted and robbed about 9:30 last night. Arriving at the place where Smith maintains bachelor apartments, the officers found a pool of blood on the floor and evidence of a pitched battle in the house. Smith was located at the home of a neighbor and related his version of the affair, which after being investigated by the officers, proved to be a family feud and the officers returned home without making any arrests.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA TO LEGALIZE THE KILLING OF SICK

Incurables May Be Painlessly Destroyed Under New Law

London, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Express quotes an article in the Prague newspaper Ceske Slovo to the effect that infliction of painless death on sufferers from incurable disease will be legalized in Czechoslovakia.

This legalization will be provided in a new code now being prepared, the article asserts, but written approval by at least two physicians will be necessary before permission to inflict death is granted.

The same code, it is stated, will exempt from punishment anybody helping another to commit suicide.

JUNIOR GOLF TOURNEY

Chicago, August 23.—(AP)—The ninth annual women's western junior golf championship crown today rested between two fifteen year old Chicago girls, June Beebe and Rena Nelson.

Upsetting the two favorites, the Chicago girls won their way into the finals of the championship to meet in an 18 hole match for the title.

SIGNALS MAY BE SENT OUT BY HASSELL

Faint Radio Calls Re- new Hope That Rock- ford Fliers Live

Chicago, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Faint radio signals received in Chicago last night by two amateur operators today gave renewed hope that Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, missing Rockford-to-Stockholm fliers still are alive.

The signals were received by Dr. Charles E. Sceeth and Irving Strauss on a wave length other than that on which the fliers' plane, Greater Rockford, was equipped to broadcast. This fact was partly explained however, by a theory that the wave length with the antennae trailing from the plane in flight might be changed when the wires were strung on the ground.

Many Times Repeated.

The signal, sent repeatedly, were partly fraught with meaning and partly meaningless. They consisted of a series of five "R's" immediately followed by a series of five "D's". After ten sets of them, have been completed two "A's" came in rapid succession. The letter "R" designated the last position which the plane broadcast before word with it was severed last Sunday morning. According to a pre-arranged system "R" indicated the plane was near Cape Chidley in its flight from Cochrane, Ont., to Mount Evans, Greenland during which it vanished.

The "D" appeared meaningless unless Cramer, who is inexperienced at the radio, was trying to tell the world that the plane is down, and the "A" had no meaning for the receivers. The signals, the operators said, came clearly in a barely audible, high tone.

The story of the radio operators increased the hope of friends and relatives of the fliers at Rockford, Ill., which they left on their trip to Stockholm a week ago today, that the aviators are on the ground in some inaccessible part of Greenland or Quebec. Ships which have patrolled the coast of the North Atlantic reported no trace of the fliers or the plane but said that if the men fell into the sea there was no chance of them surviving this long.

MacMILLAN WRITES

By Commander Donald G. MacMillan (Arctic Explorer)

Nain, Labrador, August 23.—(By Radio to the AP)—A continued search for Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, who flew to the North Atlantic fliers, being made by the cruiser Marion along the Labrador coast. The only other ship now in the immediate vicinity is the Hudson Bay Company's Bay Kain.

If the Sweden-bound fliers are fortunate enough to be on land, they may find Eskimos who are scattered along the entire coast catching cod fish. On the other hand, if Hassell and Cramer came down on water, their safety is doubtful unless they had a rubber boat and a map of the location where they were downed.

We or the Rawson-Field Museum expedition expect to return south in a few days, with fair weather, and will probably dock at Wiscasset, Maine.

We have never heard the letter "R" from the Greater Rockford's radio, although we have been in frequent touch with Prof. W. H. Hobbs' station at Mt. Evans, Greenland, the base of the Greater Rockford's scheduled second stop.

With above zero, there is very little game on the outer islands. All birds are out of their nests and it is far too early for seals or polar bear, due to a lack of drift ice. Caribou and black bear, however, are on inner bays and there is plenty of trout. The United States coast guard boat Under Lieutenant Commander Smith is in the vicinity now.

CANADIAN PATROL SEARCHES

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—(AP)—O. S. Fisher, director of the northwest territories and Yukon branch of the Department of the Interior, today requested the Canadian patrol ship Beothic to keep a sharp lookout for the airplane Greater Rockford, in which Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer disappeared while on a flight from the United States to Sweden.

The Beothic is on the east coast of Baffin Island and will be in Baffin Bay-Hudson Strait waters for several days. It has powerful wireless equipment so that if it should discover the missing men the news could be immediately broadcast.

Meteorological reports received from the north today by the department of marine showed that atmospheric conditions in the path of the Greater Rockford were excellent. Government stations in the Hudson Strait said that there had been no storm in the past several days.

"If they are in trouble," the deputy minister of the department of marine said of Hassell and Cramer after reading the reports, "it is not on account of the weather."

Louis Long and Lloyd Considine of Harmon were Dixon business callers this morning.

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

New Record High Prices Reached On N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Irregular price movements characterized the opening of today's stock market. National Cash Register opened with block of 15,000 shares at 75 and 100 with a block of 15,000 shares at 14, both duplicating the year's highs. Drug Inc. advanced 1 point to a new peak at 100. Burroughs Adding Machine opened 1 1/2 points higher and American Express, 1. American Can lost a point.

New high records were established in rapid fashion as powerful pools resumed operations in the industrials and specialties.

Among the issues to set new tops were American Express at 209, American Smelting at 22 1/2, Electric Auto Lite at 85 1/2, Kolster Radio at 59 1/2, Left at 14 1/2, National Cash Register at 75 and 100, and Purit Baking at 100.

Midland Steel Products preferred quickly rallied 4 1/2 points on the announcement of an unusually large order for auto frames. Woolworth and Chrysler rapidly climbed 2 points and Timken, Liquid Carbonic, U. S. Steel, Gold Dust and Park & Tilford advanced a point or more.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables unchanged at $4.85.

Anticipated higher prices for copper caused an enormous demand for the copper shares. American Smelting continues its recent extraordinary advance, touching 22 1/2, bettering thereby its previous high record by a wide margin. The diversion of speculative interest on such a large scale into the coppers caused some selling of other shares that were acting sluggish, and had enjoyed a recent large advance. Standing call loans again renewed at 7 per cent.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

COST OF NEW BRIDGE

There has been some comment that the proposed bond issue for the new Peoria Avenue bridge will not be sufficient to build the bridge as planned. Especially has it been stated that the cost of the foundations is unknown and will be largely in excess of the engineer's estimate.

Soundings were made across Rock River at Peoria Avenue by the John Wheeler Construction Co., contractors and engineers of Batavia, Ill., to determine the elevation of solid rock bottom and the nature of the material overlying the rock.

The contour of the river bed probably has changed some in the intervening years but neither the elevation of the rock bottom nor the nature of the overlying material could have changed to an appreciable extent.

Using the data secured by the Wheeler Construction Co., the estimate of the cost of the bridge and foundations was worked out by Mr. G. F. Burch, State Highway Bridge Engineer, whose large experience in this class of work gives us every confidence that there was no guess work as to the estimated cost.

NOTHING LIKE BUTTERMILK TO CLEAR UP SKIN

Amazing Difference in One Week or Money Back.

You can load your dressing table down with a varied collection of skin foods, wrinkle removers, pore reducers, etc. if you want to. But in a few minutes—with one massage of Howard's Buttermilk Cream you are going to do more for your skin than you have ever been able to do with all your elaborate fussing.

And Howard's Buttermilk Cream has this wonderful additional power—it acts as a gentle astringent remarkably effective in reducing enlarged pores.

There's no secret about why Howard's Buttermilk Cream can do all these things—it contains genuine old-fashioned buttermilk and cream and who doesn't know that these have long been recognized as the best and purest skin protectors and beautifiers?

A single massage with Howard's Buttermilk Cream will prove its superiority beyond all question. In fact, if after using it for one week a marked improvement hasn't taken place Campbell's White Cross Drug Store will refund your money—Adv.

Hope For Clear Day

Threatening skies early this morning were being viewed closely by the members of the Amboy Fair association in anticipation of entertaining a record crowd on Dixon day. Practically all of the cities and villages of the county declared a half holiday to attend the fair this afternoon and evening. The early morning rain was not considered to have been heavy enough to damage the track and the indications were very favorable to the clearing up of the skies before noon.

Enjoy Night Fair

The night fair last evening drew a very large crowd and with favorable weather conditions this evening, the fair grounds should experience a record breaking crowd. The program for this evening calls for a band concert at 7 o'clock in the grand stand by the Harold Bachman band. Another concert will be given at 10 o'clock just preceding the fireworks display.

The entry list for the closing day of the fair, with two harness events and two running races is as follows:

SMITH SPEECH GETS PRAISE AND CRITICISM TODAY

National Leaders Give Views On Acceptance Address

Washington, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Prominent Democrats and Republicans in many parts of the country, commenting on Governor Smith's acceptance speech, praised or found fault as they conceived of government guided them, but the expressions were accompanied by a good deal of non-partisan opinion that he had stated frankly his position on the foremost issues of the campaign.

As was to be expected, those who praised without reservation were Democrats and those who most readily found fault were Republicans. But in this group commenting there were Democrats who refused to accept the nominee's views on prohibition and Republicans who thought his stand on farm relief preferable to that of Herbert Hoover.

Those who praised without stint were Senators Edwards of New Jersey, George of Georgia, Fletcher of Florida, Caraway of Arkansas, and Representative Bloom of New York. Those who objected to portions of the address were Postmaster General New and Senators Borah of Idaho, Smoot of Utah and Fess of Ohio.

Josephus Daniels, secretary of the Navy during the Wilson administration, and Representative Crisp of Georgia, excepted only the Governor's prohibition views in their praise. George N. Peek, the farm leader, and former Senator H. C. Hansbrough of North Dakota, a Republican who now is chairman of the Smith Independent league, endorsed Smith's farm relief expression.

Senator Edwards said that the Governor's exposition "of the conditions under Voistead prohibition and the brutally frank statement of how he will attack and seek to overcome crime and corruption of the 18th amendment, and its enabling act, if elected president, is most refreshing in this era of Republican straddling, pussyfooting, and hypocritical reformation against those who honestly seek the light."

Likewise, Senator George saw in the speech a remarkable grasp of national and international problems. He noted that the Governor pledged enforcement of the prohibition amendment and laws.

Senator Caraway declared the Governor's farm relief views would have the approval of "every sincere friend of adequate farm legislation," and held that Smith had advanced "every issue with such courage that his political foes will be compelled to admit both his intelligence and his courage."

From Senator Fletcher came this comment: "This speech shows a grasp of national problems that is refreshing, stimulating and inspiring. I anticipate a wave of popular approval that will be irresistible." Representative Bloom described the speech "a fair and expository of real democracy, devoid of sham and pretense."

Josephus Daniels declared the Governor's prohibition stand was "unwise," but held the speech otherwise to "ring true upon the fundamentals of Democracy."

The other Democratic dissenter from the Smith prohibition stand—Representative Crisp of Georgia—said the Governor otherwise delighted him on every subject.

On the Republican side, Governor Smith's declaration as to the tariff was criticized by Senators Borah and Smoot. The former said the Underwood tariff "which I understand the Governor to specifically endorse," would ruin the livestock, dairy, poultry and kindred industries. Senator Smoot, who described the address as "fairly good Democratic political speech" declared that the Underwood tariff "would have ruined the country if the world war had not occurred."

Farewell Supper Honored The Longs

On Thursday evening a company of seventy relatives and friends gathered at Moose hall and served a bountiful farewell supper in the spacious banquet room in honor of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Long of Philadelphia, Pa., formerly of Dixon, who have been visiting here for the past week, after an absence of twenty years. The evening was very enjoyably spent in pleasant reminiscences, waking many under memories and friendships of days gone by, for Mr. and Mrs. Long were among Dixon's early settlers and resided here for many years. There were many new faces in the large family circle to greet the guests and join in the loving farewells of those whose brows Time has touched with frost, since their last handclasp. Mr. and Mrs. Long left Saturday for their home in Philadelphia, carrying with them many happy memories of their visit to their old home and the love and best wishes of a host of friends and relatives. Mr. Long is a brother of Mrs. Rebecca Anderson and Mrs. Matilda Sutherland of this city, and Mrs. Long is a sister of Mrs. Roy Follet, also of this city. The out of town guests at the farewell supper included the following:

Mr. and Mrs. LaForest Meredith of Franklin Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lease and son of Savanna; Mrs. Florence Stebbins and son, and Mrs. Georgia Seaberg and daughter of Rockford; Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Close and family of Pontiac; Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Martin and family of DeKalb; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Long and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Boyers and daughter of Sterling; Mrs. Emma Kornhaus, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Gohl and Mr. and Mrs. Kleckhafer of Freeport.

MR. MARLOTH HAS LEFT ON TRIP TO THE WEST

Bluebird Club Held Meeting

The Bluebird club met at the home of the Misses Arlene and Vivian Wolfram Thursday afternoon. A program of readings, piano solos and riddles was enjoyed. Games were then enjoyed and Mrs. Wolfram served delicious refreshments of ice cream and assorted cake.

The next meeting of the club will be held with Frances Scott, at her home, August 28th.

HAVE GONE TO PHILADELPHIA FOR VISIT

Mrs. Alice Beede, Mrs. Richard Newlin, Sr., Mrs. Walter Bowen Saunders, and Mrs. Richard Shipley Newlin, have left for Philadelphia, Pa., the home of Mrs. Newlin, Sr., where they will enjoy a visit. Mrs. Frank Rosbrook accompanied the party to the east, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Curtis Clark at Pittsburg, Pa.

MR. AND MRS. J. C. KOLLER ENJOYING TRIP

J. C. Koller, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and wife, are enjoying a motor trip through Wisconsin for a few days, friends in Dixon receiving cards.

Newlyweds Visit In Berlin, Wisconsin

The Berlin Evening Journal, of Berlin, Wis., of August 13th, prints the following article on the marriage of Carl Davlin, of Berlin, to Miss Mary E. Conrad of Dixon, the marriage having been announced in the Telegraph some few weeks ago. The article from the Wisconsin paper follows:

The marriage of Carl Davlin to Miss Mary E. Conrad of Dixon, Ill., some time ago, was just learned by Berlin friends when they came here to spend the week-end with Mr. Davlin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Davlin, 1000 Summer street.

Mr. Davlin, who is in the employ of Ray A. Phelps, electrical contractor of Beloit, Wis., has been working at Dixon, Ill., for the past ten months where he met his wife, Mrs. Carl Davlin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Conrad of that city.

At present the young couple are residing at Iola, Wis., where Mr. Davlin has charge of the electrical work on a school building.

Mrs. Wild-Rockey Weds John W. Elliott

Dixon and Sterling friends are much interested in the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Margaret Wild-Rockey and John William Elliott, which was solemnized at 10:30 o'clock on the morning of August 15th at the Sheridan Surf hotel, Chicago. The bride was attended by Miss Ruth Pearce of Chicago, and the groom by E. M. Burst of Sycamore. Little Miss June Elliott acted as flower girl.

Mrs. Elliott wore an ensemble of light blue Elizabeth crepe and a cocoa and beige feather hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott left after their marriage on a motor trip after which they will make their home at the Sheridan Surf apartment hotel, Chicago. Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Washington Dillon of Sterling and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Burst of Sycamore.

ARE GUESTS AT THE VAUGHN AND GALLAGHER HOMES

Guiding Your Child

KEEPING PROMISES
By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Every business man knows that when he gives his word he must keep it or forfeit the respect and good will of his associates.

But grown-ups who most rigidly adhere to promises made to their contemporaries, think nothing of breaking promises made to their children.

Yet the word given to a child should be considered just as binding as that given to a friend or associate.

If father has said, "We are going to the park today and we'll see the lion in the zoo," then he really must show him that lion. If mother has said, "Tomorrow at the picnic we'll fry bacon on sticks," then no matter what else there may be to eat there must certainly be bacon fried on sticks. When a child, having been told that he can spend the money he has saved for anything he likes, chooses to buy a bowl of goldfish, he must be allowed to bring it home and keep it, even though it may be a good deal in the way.

A moment's reflection will at once make clear why such seemingly trivial promises must be kept. If they are not the child is made needlessly unhappy. Each time his parents fail him his faith in their fairness is further undermined. Finally he will grow up to be a person who fails to keep his word in really big matters, just as his parents failed to keep theirs in the little ones that were so big to him.

If parents do keep their faith with the child he is spared many of the needless frustrations of childhood; his respect for his parents is strengthened, and following, as all children do the good example of those they love, he will become a man whose word is his bond and who earns the respect of his fellows.

Primary Department Picnic Was Enjoyed

The primary department of the Methodist Sunday school enjoyed a picnic yesterday afternoon at the Assembly Park, at Mrs. Clara Rowe's cottage, which was attended by about fifty children. Games were enjoyed, including a ball game which was a lot of fun, and various sports, such as "I spy" and "Tag," etc. And then such a wonderful picnic supper as the mothers well knew that the cool air of Tuesday and the out of door games would incite a hearty appetite and provided for it. Accompanied by those in the charge of the picnic the little ones sought their homes as the shadows lengthened, tired but happy, all having enjoyed a delightful day.

Short Interviews with Famous Women

By NEA Service.

That fabrics are coming into their own this fall is predicted by Mme. Helen Volka, eminent fashionist.

"Symphony, in the past few years, has been a word much bandied about in describing an especially harmonious dress ensemble," she said.

"But to the majority of women the fabric utilized in composing the costume has been a mere obligato to the effect considered as a whole.

"The season, however, materials of design interest have leaped boldly into the solo positions. Fabric has suddenly become the thing. Of late, the frequency with which one has encountered arresting design, especially upon diaphanous materials, has charmed up into the recognition that important art motifs and marvels of modulated color are acknowledged by the style-wise as the essence of chic.

"And, almost overwhelmingly, design and color carry on for fall and winter. Whether of velvet, crepe satin, the transparencies or the irresistibly appealing new metal cloths, the smart wools, or latest velveteens, Paris and New York acclaim the steadily rising vogue of printed or woven fabric design."

COMPTON NEWS

Compton—Considerable damage was done to farm buildings, trees and cornfields out south of town by the terrific windstorm that hit here late Monday evening. On the John Florschuetz farm the granary was blown from the foundation and windows broken in the house. The silo was completely demolished. Other large damage reports were made by L. C. Bauer and Felix Grandjean. The storm did the most damage from J. Florschuetz eastward.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Carnahan and daughter after visiting here for the past three weeks, left by auto for their home in Monrovia, Cal., on last Saturday afternoon. They will stop over at Peoria for a short stay with his brother, J. A. Carnahan and wife.

Mrs. George Florschuetz celebrated a family reunion at the home of her son, Wm. A. Florschuetz last Sunday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Florschuetz, Mr. and Mrs. John Florschuetz, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Ulch and family, Mrs. Clara Zapf of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Rolan Gatten of Marseilles.

Miss Evelyn Gilmore will spend a fortnight with her relatives in Forest Park.

Mrs. Emma Archer left for Sterling Tuesday evening where she will remain for the week with her daughter Mrs. Lulu Woodvatt and family.

Mrs. Elizabeth Buck has returned from Aurora to live with her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Bernardin for the next month.

H. M. Chaon made a business trip to Chicago during the week. Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Hills accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Robert Campbell and husband are enjoying the next few days near Janesville, Wis.

G. D. Archer has returned from Cimmarron, Kansas, where he has been busy harvesting his wheat crop there with a combine. Heavy rains has delayed the harvesting, and especially with a combine made it necessary to extend his stay there three week longer than anticipated.

The youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kessler was badly bruised when her brother ran into her with a Ford car which he was driving late Monday afternoon.

INTERPRETATION OF SIGNS.

Things are not always what they seem. Those who come after us may find misleading signs along the economic highway. They may find difficulty in reconciling facts. Further, there may be facts found tending to prove that which is not true.

In decades past large shipments of gold to Europe from the United States were coincident with bad conditions here. Balance of trade against us meant removal of gold. Balance of trade against us meant that we were selling. It meant that our industries were idle. Hence, mention of large shipments of gold abroad signified the whole bad situation.

During the last year there have been such large shipments of gold without signifying anything of the kind. It was deliberately planned in order to stabilize the currencies of the world. We had more than our share, if we have read the situation correctly. We had gold that countries of Europe needed. We could spare it without danger to ourselves or our currency. The problem was how to bring about the change.

The federal reserve board, after conference with European representatives of government finance, decided to lower the rediscount rates. By so doing money would become cheaper in the United States and would be induced to remain in Europe. That which had come here for investment upon our basis of greater prosperity might be induced to return.

It will be recalled that this created a stir because the Chicago district refused to change the rate, and the federal reserve board acted over its head.

Gold has been going to Europe in large quantities. Some may assert that this has been without injury to us, but the fact remains that cheap money induced extensive speculation in this country, the thing the Chicago district thought best to avoid. Further, under change of bank administration and in due time the federal reserve banks have been increasing the rediscount rate to reduce speculation and speculative values.

Another evil sign was empty boxcars. Large numbers of empty cars were evidences of economic distress. Now railroads boast of the large amount of extra equipment available for peak loads, such as the harvest season. Car service associations are making possible almost perfect distribution of cars to shippers. These elements are in the face of the fact that each autumn for several years has seen several months of a million carloadings a week.

In the future statisticians will have to find new rules for indicating good times and hard times in the United States.

WOMEN AS PILOTS.

The exploit of Lady Heath, British airwoman, who piloted a commercial plane carrying 25 passengers across the English channel on one of its regular trips, suggests the possibility that aviation will become a new field in which women can exercise their talents.

There is no reason why women should not be as good pilots as men. The job calls for an excellent physique and good powers of endurance, but does not require great physical strength. No one has ever demonstrated that the qualities most needed by a competent aviator are not possessed by women as well as by men.

It is entirely possible that the future will see many women piloting commercial planes about the country—indeed, "probable" is no doubt a better word than "possible." Woman has invaded every other field; why not this one?

OTHERS ARE OVERPAID, TOO.

It is said by sports writers that the Tunney-Heeney fight marked the end of the million dollar fights. Never again, they say, will a pugilist get half a million for an evening's work. The boom has collapsed.

That is, after all a good thing. The tremendous purses drawn down by boxers represented a sense of values that was out of all proportion. But the situation was never quite as bad as some people used to think.

It's hardly right for a fighter to earn more than the president of the United States, perhaps. But, after all, there are sleek-haired movie actors and softly-curved movie actresses who make even more money; and, in the long run, it is probably true that they contribute no more to the advancement of the nation than the prize fighters.

THE KNYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

"By golly, we are pretty good," cried Carry. "Who would think we could do fancy tricks away up here, while hanging by our knees. We'll put our act on, shy of fear, and please the crowd when it is here." And then he swung round on a bar, and did the trick with ease.

The next performance of the show made all the audience laugh. "Ha, ho! The Times on their act on and 'twas quite a funny sight to see these little fellows flop up in the air and almost drop. Each time they'd seem about to fall, they'd catch a hold all right. Then, when the show at last was over, the whole bunch heard the trainer roar, 'Say, that was great! You did just fine. I'm surely proud of you. You've done more than your share, I guess to make this show a big success. Tomorrow we will find some other tricks for you to do.'"

THE GRAPE CURE
Grapes are rich in valuable mineral salts and vitamins. They are rich in potassium, sodium, calcium, magnesium, phosphorus, sulphur, sil-con and iron. These are organized in a form that can be readily absorbed by the blood for use in the tissues, which are always hungry for these vitamins and salts.

In Europe the grape cure has long been recognized as a good regime for those who suffer from many diseases, particularly anemia, diseases of the liver and kidney trouble. The patients use no other food of any kind, but live exclusively on grapes, drink as much as they desire. From three to eight pounds are used daily, and this grape fast may continue for a month or more.

The strong tartaric acid of the grape sometimes irritates the mouth but this can be avoided by washing the mouth several times daily with a solution of bicarbonate of soda and water.

Grapes should always be used by themselves, either in place of meals or as an exclusive diet for several days. Many cures have been reported from this fasting regime, and I can recommend the same diet to any of my readers who contemplate going on a grape diet.

Grapes have been cultivated for food from prehistoric times and their use may have antedated all other fruit, even the forbidden apple. The making of wine from grapes is perhaps one of the oldest industries, as it has been done for at least six thousand years.

Grape juice is one of the most nutritious drinks when fresh, unfermented, or preserved by pasteurization. The best unfermented grape juice is made from good table grapes, with nothing added to the juice, is bottled after being carefully pasteurized.

When prohibition went into effect, many farmers dug up their vineyards. This was a mistake, since the use of grape juice has been increased to such an extent that grape growing is now one of the most profitable farming industries. The price per ton of wine grapes is actually several times that of ten years ago.

Grapes contain from 12 per cent to 26 per cent of grape sugar, and from 1 per cent to 3 per cent nitrogenous substances as well as the mineral elements.

During the grape season it is well to leave a dish of grapes standing in some convenient place in the home. Grapes should not be eaten too close to a meal.

Grapes in the form of raisins are a very valuable food, and can be used in any part of the world, since they keep well. They are rich in energy materials.

Take advantage of grape season, and you will be richly rewarded with an increase in good blood. An exclusive diet of this most delicious fruit will give a rest to your overworked digestive organs, and the whole alimentary canal will be cleansed and purified by this delectable fruit of the vine.

Raisins ground in with dried meat make an excellent pemmican which is used by Arctic explorers and large expeditions, as it will keep almost indefinitely if protected from moisture. This combination is quite wholesome, and forms a well balanced meal by itself.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. R. L. J. writes: "Please tell me how I can overcome fainting spells, and what causes them. I cannot have a slight pain without turning very weak and sick, and unless I lie down under a fan or apply wet cloths to my head I will faint. I cannot even listen to people telling of operations without a fainting spell which leaves me weak for half a day. Severe pain will not make me sick or faint, but slight, uncomfortable pains always make me sick to the extent that I almost faint."

ANSWER: You may have some kind of heart trouble, or you may be over-nervous, due to wrong mental and physical training. Of course, I cannot tell you specifically what is causing your trouble without a personal consultation and examination.

QUESTION: Mrs. G. D. J. writes: "Will you please name the foods that are non-cathartic-producing? I have a cold in my head constantly. I may have chronic catarrh. If so, can diet cure this trouble?"

ANSWER: You can use all of the non-starchy vegetables and the fruit without producing any excessive cathartic mucus. All of the foods high in caloric value, such as the starches, sugars and proteins may be said to be cathartic-producing if used in large quantities. The hydrocarbons, that is, the fats and oils, also contribute their share in adding to the toxins which irritate the mucous membranes and produce catarrh. The best diet for you to take is one free from starches, sugars and fats, but with a small amount of protein and plenty of non-starchy vegetables.

QUESTION: K. L. asks: "Are sulphur and molasses good for the blood? If so, how often and how much should be taken?"

ANSWER: The sulphur and molasses treatment is no doubt effective in removing some intestinal toxemias, but a fruit fast is far superior for accomplishing this effect.

OLD GOLD bats 1000% as Hornsby takes the Blindfold cigarette test

ROGERS HORNSBY... capable captain of the Boston Braves... captain of the 1927 New York Giants... manager of the 1926 St. Louis Cardinals, who won the World's Series.

Mr. HORNSBY was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing his taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked... "Which one do you like best?"

What gives OLD GOLD this winning charm?

Here is the answer, in three words...heart-leaf tobacco. No coarse, heavy top-leaves of the tobacco plant...for they irritate the throat. No withered ground-leaves...for they are lacking in aroma. Only the cool and fragrant heart-leaves...golden ripe...can give Old Golds their honey-like smoothness. That's why you can tell them in the dark.

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant

"They say 'there's not a cough in a carload' of Old Golds."

"But I can tell you there's a home-run hit in every cool mouthful."

"For no other cigarette, of the four leading brands in the blindfold test, could compare with Old Golds for pure pleasure to taste, tongue and throat."

HENRY BRISCOE

FIRST ST. AT PEORIA

GOV ALFRED E. SMITH DELIVERS SPEECH ACCEPTING NOMINATION AS PRESIDENT BY DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Democratic Standard Bearer, at Notification in Albany, N. Y., Airs His Views on Prohibition, The Eighteenth Amendment, Relief for Agriculture, Etc.

The following is the complete text of the speech of acceptance of the Democratic nomination for President of the United States delivered last night in Albany, N. Y. by Governor Alfred E. Smith:

Upon the steps of this Capitol where twenty-five years ago I first came into the service of the State I receive my party's summons to lead it in the nation. Within this building, I learned the principles, the purposes and the functions of government and to know that the greatest privilege that can come to any man is to give himself to a nation which has reared him and raised him from obscurity to be a contender for the highest office in the gift of its people.

Here I confirmed my faith in the principles of the Democratic Party so eloquently defined by Woodrow Wilson: "First, the people as the source and their interests and desires as the text of law and institutions. Second, individual liberty as the objective of all law." With a gratitude too strong for words and with humble reliance upon the aid of Divine Providence, I accept your summons to the wider field of action.

Government should be constructive, not destructive; progressive, not reactionary. I am entirely unwilling to accept the old order of things as the best, unless and until I become convinced that it cannot be made better.

It is our new world theory that government exists for the people as against the old world conception that the people exist for the government. A sharp line separates those who believe that an elect class should be the special object of the government's concern and those who believe that the government is the agent and servant of the people who create it. Dominant in the Republic Party today is the element which proclaims and executes the political theories against which the party liberals like Roosevelt and LaFollette and their party insurgents have rebelled. This reactionary element seeks to vindicate the theory of benevolent oligarchy. It assumes that a material prosperity, the very existence of which is challenged, is an excuse for political inequality. It makes the concern of the government, not people, but material things.

I have fought this spirit in my own State. I have had to fight it and to beat it in order to place upon the statute books every one of the progressive humane laws for whose enactment I assumed responsibility in my legislative and executive career. I shall know how to fight it in the nation.

It is a fallacy that there is inconsistency between progressive measures protecting the rights of the people, including the poor and the weak, and a just regard for the rights of legiti-mate business, great or small. Therefore, while I emphasize my belief that legitimate business promotes the national welfare, let me warn the forces of corruption and favoritism, that Democratic victory means that they will be relegated to the rear and the front seats will be occupied by the friends of equal opportunity.

Likewise, government policy should spring from the deliberate action of an informed electorate. Of all men, I have reason to believe that the people can and do grasp the problems of the government. Against the opposition of the self-seeker and the partisan, again and again, I have seen legislation won by the pressure of popular demand, exerted after the people had had an honest, frank and complete explanation of the issues. Great questions of finance, the issuance of millions of dollars of bonds for public projects, the complete reconstruction of the machinery of the State government, the institution of an executive budget, these are but a few of the complicated questions which I, myself, have taken to the electorate. Every citizen has thus learned the nature of the business in hand and appreciated that the State's business is his business.

That direct contact with the people I propose to continue in this campaign and, if I am elected, in the conduct of the nation's affairs. I shall thereby strive to make the nation's policy the true reflection of the nation's ideals. Because I believe in the idealism of the party of Jefferson, Cleveland and Wilson, my administration will be rooted in liberty under the law; liberty that means freedom to the individual to follow his own will so long as he does not harm his neighbor; the same high moral purpose in our conduct as a nation that actuates the conduct of the God-fearing man and woman; that equality of opportunity which lays the foundation for wholesome family life and opens up the outlook for the betterment of the lives of our children.

In the rugged honesty of Grover Cleveland there originated one of our party's greatest principles: "Public office is a public trust." That principle now takes on new meaning. Political parties are the vehicle for carrying out the popular will. We place responsibility upon the party. The Republican Party today stands responsible for the widespread dishonesty that has honey-combed its administration.

During the last presidential campaign the Republican managers were partially successful in leading the American people to believe that these sins should be charged against the individual rather than against the party. The question of personal guilt has now been thoroughly disposed of and in its place challenging the wisdom and good judgment of the American people, is the unquestioned evidence of party guilt.

The Democratic Party asks the electorate to withdraw their confidence from the Republican Party and repose it with the Democratic Party pledged to continue those standards of unblemished integrity which characterized every act of the administration of Woodrow Wilson.

Calls Prosperity False.
The Republican Party builds its case upon a myth. We are told that only under the benevolent administration of that party can the country enjoy prosperity. When four million men, desirous to work and support their families, are unable to secure employment there is very little in the picture of prosperity to attract them and the millions dependent upon them.

In the year 1926, the latest figures available show that 1-20th of 1 percent of the 130,000 corporations in this country earned 40 percent of their profits; 40 percent of the corporations actually lost money; 1-4 of 1 percent of these corporations earned two-thirds of the profits of all of them. Specific industries are wholly prostrate and there is widespread business difficulty and discontent among the individual business men of the country.

Prosperity to the extent that we have it is unduly concentrated and has not equitably touched the lives of the farmer, the wage-earner and the individual business man. The claim of governmental economy is as baseless as the claims that general business prosperity exists and that it can exist only under Republican administration.

When the Republican Party came into power in 1921 it definitely promised reorganization of the machinery of government, and abolition or consolidation of unnecessary and overlapping agencies. A Committee was appointed. A representative of the President acted as Chairman. It prepared a plan of reorganization. The plan was filed in the archives. It still remains there. After seven years of Republican control the structure of government is worse than in 1921. It is fully as bad as the system which existed in New York State before we secured by constitutional amendment the legislation which consolidated more than one hundred offices, commissions and boards into eighteen coordinated departments, each responsible to the Governor. In contrast with this, the Republican party in control at Washington when faced with the alternative of loss of patronage for the faithful or more efficient and economical management of the government permitted the old order to continue for the benefit of the patronage seekers.

The appropriations for independent bureau and offices not responsible to any cabinet officer increased from $3,400,000 in 1914 to $163,000,000 in 1921, and to $556,000,000 in 1928. No wonder that a cabinet officer of the Republican President of 1921 said "If you could visualize the government as a business or administrative unit, you would see something like one of those grotesque spectacles of a big oyster shell to which in the course of years, oysters and irregular masses of barnacles have attached themselves without symmetry or relevancy." And the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said in its annual report this year: "No progress has been made on the plan of reorganization of the government's departments as advocated by the Chamber." The Administration spokesman answers only: "We have given an economical administration," and that has been repeated so often that some people begin to believe it without the slightest proof. I assert that there is no proof.

The appropriations bills signed by the President of the United States for the last year are just one-half a million dollars more than they were for the first year of his administration. The appropriations for the Executive Department itself (The President and Vice President) have increased more than 10 percent under President Coolidge.

The figures for expenditure as distinguished from appropriations tell the same story. Aside from interest on the public debt which has been reduced by retirement of bonds or by refinancing at lower interest rate, the actual expenditures for governmental activities during the fiscal year ending in 1928 were just $348,000,000 more than in President Coolidge's first year.

If the defenders of the administration answer that taxes have been reduced, they find themselves in a similar dilemma. The total taxes collected are $24,000,000 more than in the first year of the Coolidge administration. While tax rates have been reduced and some war-time taxes abandoned, the government actually took from the people in income taxes $383,900,000 more during the last fiscal year than during the first year of the Coolidge administration. And even these reductions in tax rates have been brought about primarily because the administration has committed the government to appropriations authorized but not made, amounting approximately to one billion dollars, which is an obligation that is being passed on to succeeding administrations. I wish to focus the public attention on these fundamental facts and figures when it is fed with picturesque trifles about petty economies, such as eliminating stripes from mail bags and extinguishing electric lights in the offices at night.

True vs. False Economy.
With this has gone a governmental policy of refusal to make necessary expenditures for purposes which would have effected a real economy. The Postmaster-General states that there was a large annual waste in the handling of mail, resulting from lack of modern facilities and equipment. Scarcely a large city in the country has adequate quarters for the transaction of Federal business. The government pays rent in the city of Washington alone of more than one million dollars annually. It is estimated that the government is paying rentals of twenty million dollars in the nation. True economy would be effected by the erection of Federal buildings, especially in the numerous instances where sites acquired many years ago have been left vacant because the administration did not desire to have these expenditures appear in the budget. It is not economy to refuse to spend money and to have our soldiers living in barracks while the Chief of Staff of the Army repeatedly stated were indecent and below the standard for the meanest type of housing permitted anywhere. And the wise, properly timed construction of needed public improvements would substantially tend to lessen the evils of unemployment.

If the people commission me to do it, I shall with the aid of the Congress effect a real reorganization and consolidation of governmental activities upon a business basis and institute the real economy which comes from prudent expenditure. I shall aid programs for the relief of unemployment, recognizing its deep, human and social significance and shall strive to accomplish a national well-being resting upon the prosperity of the individual men and women who constitute the nation.

The Tariff!
Acting upon the principle of "Equal opportunity for all, special privileges for none," I shall ask Congress to carry out the tariff declaration of our platform. To be sure the Republican Party will attempt in the campaign to misrepresent Democratic attitude to the tariff. The Democratic Party does not and under my leadership will not advocate any sudden or drastic revolution in our economic system which would cause business upheaval and popular distress. This principle was recognized as far back as the passage of the Underwood Tariff Bill. Our platform restates it in unmistakable language. The Democratic Party stands squarely for the maintenance of legitimate business and a high standard of wages for American labor. Both can be maintained and at the same time the tariff can be taken out of the realm of politics and treated on a strictly business basis.

A leading Republican writing in criticism of the present tariff law, said: "It stands as one of the most ill drawn pieces of legislation in recent political history. It is probably near the actual truth to say that taking for granted some principle of protection of American business and industry, the country has prospered due to post-war conditions abroad and in spite of, rather than on account of, the Fordney-McCumber tariff." What I have just quoted is no part of a campaign document. It was written a few months ago by Professor William Myers of Princeton University, writing the history of his own party.

Against the practice of legislative log rolling, Woodrow Wilson pointed the way to a remedy. It proved for the creation and maintenance of a non-political, quasi-judicial, fact-finding commission which could investigate and advise the President and Congress as to the tariff duties really required to protect American industry and safeguard the high standard of American wages. In an administration anxious to meet political obligations, the Commission has ceased to function and it has been publicly stated by former members of it that the work of the Commission has been turned over to the advocates of special interests. To bring this about, it is a matter of record that the President demanded the undated resignation of one of its members before he signed his appointment.

I shall restore this Commission to the high level upon which President Wilson placed it, in order that, properly manned, it may produce the facts that will enable us to ascertain how we may increase the purchasing power of everybody's income or wages by the adjustment of those schedules which are now the result of log-rolling and which upon their face are extortionate and unnecessary.

Pay no attention to the Republican propaganda and accept my assurance as the leader of our party that Democratic tariff legislation will be honest. It will play no favorites.

It will do justice to every element in the Nation.

Foreign Policy.
The Constitution provides that treaties with foreign powers must be ratified by a vote of two-thirds of the Senate. This is a legal recognition of the truth that in our foreign relations we must rise above party politics and act as a united nation. Any foreign policy must have its roots deep in the approval of a very large majority of our people. Therefore, no greater service was ever rendered by any President than by Woodrow Wilson when he struck at the methods of secret diplomacy. Today we have close relations, vital to our commercial and world standing, with every other nation. I regard it, therefore, as a paramount duty to keep alive the interest of our people in these questions, and to advise the electorate as to facts and policies. Through a long line of distinguished Secretaries of State, Republican and Democratic alike, this country had assumed a position of world leadership in the endeavor to outlaw war and substitute reason for force. At the end of President Wilson's administration we enjoyed not only the friendship but the respectful admiration of the peoples of the world. Today we see unmistakable evidences of a widespread distrust of us and unfriendliness to us, particularly among our Latin American neighbors.

I especially stress the necessity for the restoration of cordial relations with Latin America and I take my text from a great Republican Secretary of State, Elihu Root, who said: "We consider that the independence and equal rights of the smallest and weakest member of the family of nations deserve as much respect as those of the great empires. We pretend to no right, privilege or power that we do not freely concede to each one of the American Republics."

The present administration has been false to that declaration of one of its greatest party leaders. The situation in Nicaragua fairly exemplifies our departure from this high standard. The administration has intervened in an election dispute between two conflicting factions, sent our troops into Nicaragua, maintained them there for years, and this without the consent of Congress. To settle this internal dispute, our marines have died and hundreds of Nicaraguans in turn have been killed.

DELIVERS SPEECH

by our marines. Without consultation with Congress, the administration entered on this long continued occupation of the territory of a supposedly friendly nation by our armed troops.

To no declaration of our platform do I more heartily commit myself than the one for the abolition of the practice of the President of entering into agreements for the settlement of internal disputes in Latin American countries. Unless the agreements have been consented to by the Senate as provided for in the Constitution of the United States, I personally declare what the platform declares: "Interference in the purely internal affairs of Latin American countries must cease" and I specifically pledge myself to follow this declaration with regard to Mexico as well as the other Latin American countries.

The Monroe Doctrine must be maintained but not as a pretext for meddling with the purely local concerns of countries which even though they be small are sovereign and entitled to demand and receive respect for their sovereignty. And I shall certainly do all that lies in my power to bring about the fullest concerted action between this country and all the Latin American countries with respect to any step which it may ever be necessary to take to discharge such responsibilities to civilization as may be placed upon us by the Monroe Doctrine.

The evil effect of the administration's policy with respect to Latin America has extended to our relations with the rest of the world. I am not one of those who contend that everything Republican is bad and everything Democratic is good. I approve the effort to renew and extend the arbitration treaties negotiated under the administration of President Wilson. But the usefulness of those treaties as deterrents of war is materially impaired by the reservations asserted by various nations of the right to wage defensive wars as those reservations are interpreted in the light of President Coolidge's record. Defending his policies he announced on April 25, 1927, the doctrine that the person and property of a citizen are a part of the national domain, even when abroad. I do not think the American people would approve a doctrine which would give to Germany, or France, or England, or any other country, the right to regard a citizen of that country or the property of a citizen of that country situated within the borders of the United States as a part of the national domain of the foreign country. Our unwarranted intervention in internal affairs in Latin America and this specious reason for it constitutes the basis upon which other countries may seek to justify imperialistic policies which threaten world peace and materially lessen the effectiveness which might otherwise lie in the multilateral treaties.

The real outlary of war must come from a more substantial endeavor to remove the causes of war and in this endeavor the Republican administration has signally failed. I am neither militarist nor jingo. I believe that the people of this country wish to live in peace and amity with the world. Freedom from entangling alliances is a fixed American policy. It does not mean, however, that great nations should not behave to one another with the same decent friendliness and fair play that self-respecting men and women show to one another.

Limitation of Armaments.
In 1921 there was negotiated a treaty for the limitation of the construction of battleships and battle cruisers of over ten thousand tons. It was approved without party dispute as a start of the process of removing from the backs of the tolling masses of the world the staggering burden of the hundreds of millions of dollars that are wrung from them every year for wasteful transformation into engines of destruction. For seven years the Republican administration has followed it with nothing effective. No limitation has been placed upon land armaments, submarines, vessels of war of under ten thousand tons displacement, poisonous gases or any of the other machinery devised by man for the destruction of human life. In this respect our diplomacy has been futile.

I believe the American people desire to assume their fair share of responsibility for the administration of a world of which they are a part, without political alliance with any foreign nation. I pledge myself to a resumption of a real endeavor to make the outlary of war effective by removing its causes and to substitute the methods of conciliation, conference, arbitration and judicial determination.

The Prohibition Issue.
The President of the United States has two constitutional duties with respect to prohibition. The first is embodied in his oath of office. If, with one hand on the Bible and the other hand reaching up to Heaven, I promise the people of this country that "I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States," you may be sure that I shall live up to that oath to the last degree. I shall to the very limit execute the pledge of our platform "to make an honest endeavor to enforce the 18th Amendment and all other provisions of the Federal Constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto."

The President does not make the laws. He does his best to execute them whether he likes them or not. The corruption in enforcement activities which caused a former Republican Prohibition Administrator to state that three-fourths of the dry agents were political ward heelers named by politicians without regard to Civil Service laws and that prohibition is the "new political pork barrel," I will ruthlessly stamp out. Such conditions can not and will not exist under any administration presided over by me.

The second constitutional duty imposed upon the President is "To recommend to the Congress such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient." Opinion upon prohibition cuts squarely across the two great political parties. There are thousands of so-called "wets and dries" in each. The platform of my party is silent upon any question of change in the law. I personally believe that there should be change and I shall advise the Congress in accordance with my constitutional duty of whatever changes I deem "necessary or expedient." It will then be for the people and the representatives in the national and State legislatures to determine whether these changes shall be made.

I will state the reason for my belief. In a book "Law and its Origin," recently called to my notice, James C. Carter, one of the leaders of the Bar of this country, wrote of the conditions which exist "when a law is made" declaring conduct widely practiced and widely regarded as innocent to be a crime." He points out that in the enforcement of such a law "trials become scenes of perjury and subornation of perjury; juries find abundant excuses for rendering acquittal or persisting in disagreement contrary to their oaths" and he concludes "Perhaps worst of all is that general regard and reverence for law are impaired, a consequence the mischief of which can scarcely be estimated." These words, written years before the 18th Amendment or the Volstead Act were prophetic of our situation today.

I believe in temperance. We have not achieved temperance under the present system. The mothers and fathers of young men and women throughout this land know the anxiety and worry which has been brought to them by their children's use of liquor in a way which was unknown before prohibition. I believe in reverence for law. Today disregard of the prohibition laws is insidiously sapping respect for all law. I raise, therefore, what I profoundly believe to be a great moral issue involving the righteousness of our national conduct and the protection of our children's morals.

The remedy, as I have stated, is the fearless application of Jeffersonian principles. Jefferson and his followers foresaw the complex activities of this great, widespread country. They knew that in rural sparsely settled districts people would develop different desires and customs from those in densely populated sections and that if we were to be a nation united on truly national matters, there had to be a differentiation in local laws to allow for different local habits. It was for this reason that the Democratic platform in 1884 announced "We oppose sumptuary laws which vex the citizens and interfere with individual liberty," and it was for this reason that Woodrow Wilson vetoed the Volstead Act. Would Modify Dry Law.

In accordance with this Democratic principle, some immediate relief would come from an amendment to the Volstead Law giving a scientific definition of the alcoholic content of an intoxicating beverage. The present definition is admittedly inaccurate and unscientific. Each State would then be allowed to fix its own standard of alcoholic content, subject always to the proviso that that standard could not exceed the maximum fixed by the Congress.

I believe moreover that there should be submitted to the people the question of some change in the provisions of the 18th Amendment. Certainly, no one foresaw when the amendment was ratified the conditions which exist today of bootlegging, corruption and open violation of the law in all parts of the country. The people themselves should after this eight years of trial, be permitted to say whether existing conditions should be rectified. I personally believe in an amendment in the 18th Amendment which would give to each individual State itself only after approval by a referendum popular vote of its people the right wholly within its borders to import, manufacture or cause to be manufactured and sell alcoholic beverages, the sale to be made only by the state itself and not for consumption in any public place. We may well learn from the experience of other nations. Our Canadian neighbors have gone far in this manner to solve this problem by the method of sale made by the state itself and not by private individuals.

There is no question here of the return of the saloon. When I stated that the saloon "is and ought to be a defunct institution in this country" I meant it. I mean it today. I will never advocate nor approve any law which directly or indirectly permits the return of the saloon.

Such a change would preserve for the dry states the benefit of a national law that would continue to make interstate shipment of intoxicating beverages a crime. It would preserve for the dry states Federal enforcement of prohibition within their own borders. It would permit to citizens of other states a carefully limited and controlled method of effectuating the popular will wholly within the borders of those states without the old evil of the saloon.

Such a method would re-establish respect for law and terminate the agitation which has injected discord into the ranks of the great political parties which should be standing for the accomplishment of fundamental programs for the nation. I may fairly say even to those who disagree with me that the solution I offer is one based upon the historic policy of the Democratic Party, to assure to each State its complete right of local self-government. I believe it is a solution which would today be offered by Jefferson, or Jackson or Cleveland or Wilson, if those great leaders were with us.

Agriculture.
Publicity agents of the Republican administration have written so many articles on our general prosperity, that they have prevented the average man from having a proper appreciation of the degree of distress existing today among farmers and stock-raisers. From 1910 to the present, time the farm debt has increased by the striking sum of ten billions of dollars, or from four billion to fourteen billion dollars. The value of farm property between 1920 and 1925 decreased by twenty billions of dollars. This depression made itself felt in an enormous increase of bank failures in the agricultural districts. In 1927 there were 830 bank failures, with total liabilities of over 270 millions of dollars, almost entirely in the agricultural sections, as against 49 such failures during the last year of President Wilson's administration.

The report of November 17, 1927, of a Special Committee of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities states: "Incomes from farming since 1920 have not been sufficient to pay a fair return on the current value of capital used and a fair wage for the farmer's labor, or to permit farm people to maintain a standard of living comparable with other groups of like ability."

The Business Men's Commission on Agriculture said in November, 1927, "Since the war, the prices of farm products have persisted in an un-economic and unfavorable adjustment to the general scale of prices of other goods and services;" and "the disparity between urban and farm incomes has emphasized the distinction in standards of living in the rural and urban populations." "The value of farm land and farm property decreased heavily in the post-war deflation" and "large numbers of farmers have lost all their property in this process."

We have not merely a problem of helping the farmer. While agriculture is one of the most individualized and independent of enterprises, still as the report of the Business Men's Commission points out, "Agriculture is essentially a public function, affected with a clear and unquestionable public interest." The country is an economic whole. If the buying power of agriculture is impaired, the farmer makes fewer trips to Main Street. The shop owner suffers because he has lost a large part of his trade. The manufacturer who supplies him likewise suffers as does the wage earner, because the manufacturer is compelled to curtail his production. And the banker cannot collect his debts or safely extend further credit. This country cannot be a healthy, strong economic body if one of its members so fundamentally important as agriculture, is sick almost to the point of economic death.

The normal market among the farmers of this country for the products of industry is ten billions of dollars. Our export market according to latest available figures is, exclusive of agricultural products, approximately one billion, six hundred millions of dollars. These large figures furnish a striking indication of the serious blow to national prosperity as a whole which is struck when the buying power of the farmer is paralyzed. When, therefore, I say that I am in accord with our platform declaration that the solution of this problem must be a prime and immediate concern of the Democratic administration, I make no class appeal. I am stating a proposition as vital to the welfare of business as of agriculture.

With the exception of the administrations of Cleveland and Wilson, the government of this country has been in Republican hands for half a century. For nearly eight years the President and Congress have been Republican. What has been done to solve this problem? Many promises were made which have never been fulfilled. Certainly the promise of relief by tariff has not been fulfilled. The tariff is ineffective on commodities of which there is exportable surplus without controlled sale of the surplus. Our platform points the way to make the tariff effective for crops of which we produce a surplus. There has been government interference with laws of supply and demand to benefit industry, commerce and finance. It has been one-sided because business, industry and finance would have been helped more if proper attention had been given to the condition of agriculture. Nothing of substance has been done to bring this basic part of our national life into conformity with the economic system that has been set up by law. Government should interfere as little as possible with business. But if it does interfere with one phase of economic life, be it by tariff, by assistance to merchant marine, by control of the flow of money and capital through the banking system, it is bad logic, bad economics and an abandonment of government responsibility to say that as to agriculture alone, the government should not aid.

Twice a Republican Congress has passed legislation only to have it vetoed by a President of their own party, and whether the veto of that specific measure was right or wrong, it is undisputed that no adequate substitute was ever recommended to the Congress by the President and that on constructive plan of relief was ever formulated by any leader of the Republican Party in place of the plan which its Congress passed and its President vetoed. Only caustic criticism and bitter denunciation were provoked in the minds of the Republican leaders in answer to the nation-wide appeal for a sane endeavor to meet this crisis.

Cooperative, coordinated marketing and warehousing of surplus farm products is essential just as coordinated, cooperative control of the flow

Mental Ease in Driving

Cadillac is, today, more than ever the leader and arbiter in the development of artistic body designs and appointments.

But Cadillac this year has been primarily concerned with the problem of providing the greatest possible mental ease in driving for Cadillac and La Salle owners.

This is vitally important. Car speeds are higher than ever. Traffic congestion in many localities is increasing.

Let us place a Cadillac or La Salle at your disposal for test of the new mechanical features. You will quickly convince yourself that Cadillac engineers have provided the fundamental improvements that will lessen driving strain and make motoring a relaxation and a pleasure.

WHIRLWIND

BY ELEANOR EARLY

"They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind."—Hosea VIII, 7.

CHAPTER I

WHEN Sybil Thorne was younger and her picture appeared every day or two in the social columns, it was usually captioned "Boston's Fairest Bud."

Society editors heaped praise and compliments upon her. One of them declared her to be "the most popular and the most beautiful" debutante of the season. Another pronounced her the best dancer, and a third the most accomplished sportswoman.

A short while ago one of the newspapers, launching a contest to elect "Miss Boston," rescued an old cut from the reference room, and headed it "Madcap Belle—Is She Boston's Prettiest Girl?"

But Sybil isn't exactly a girl any more. She was 30 last month.

Her first triumphs date back to the war. It was then she grew up; falling in love, after the fashion of adolescents, with a soldier. Shortly afterward she parked her corsets at a tea dance, and proceeded to the enjoyment of those reckless pursuits which reformers and professors write about with great feeling.

The "youth of the land" was becoming subject for tirade and tears. Worthy citizens formed vigilance committees, and wrote articles. Some of them have been supporting themselves that way ever since.

Sybil was 18 when she first got herself talked about. It was partly because she was so unusually pretty. People can believe almost anything of a girl with beautiful legs, particularly if she possesses, also, a certain symmetry of form and loveliness of feature. Sybil's eyes are beautiful pools of velvety softness, flecked with little darts of coppery stuff. Her skin has an ivory pallor, and she makes up her lips so they look like a bleeding gash in her pale face.

FROM the time Sybil could talk, she has been a creature of moods and tempers. Her temperament probably has had a good deal to do with fashioning her life. But then, of course, there was the war. The war bungled a lot of things.

Sybil just missed being a war bride. At Miss Middleton's select boarding school all through the winter of 1917 she folded Red Cross bandages, and made innumerable bags of cretonne with draw strings. In each bag she put a knit face cloth of unbleached dimensions, a package of cigarettes, a bar of sweet chocolate, a pair of socks and a sleeveless sweater.

During vacation she rebelled. "It's so SIMPLE!" she fumed. "Crazy old sweaters and socks that don't match! Afghans and wash rugs!"

She threw her knitting needles away, and Miss Middleton put her down as a Bolshevik.

"I'm a conscientious objector," Sybil used to say; and that, in those days, was regarded as a great heresy. One night at dinner she threw a verbal bombshell into the family gathering.

"I'm sick to death," she told her astonished parents, "of the futility of the life I lead. I want to DO something. I'm going across."

Her father choked on his rice pudding—"Nothing of the sort," he objected, when he caught her breath. "Are you crazy, Sybil?" Her mother was quite unmoved. "Don't you think, dear," she questioned mildly, "that your poor father and I have enough to worry about as it is?"

Mrs. Thorne's eyes were blue and faded. She knit from morning until night, and denied herself all luxuries. Tad, the child of her heart, was at Toul with Battery A of the 101st, and there were terrible tidings those days of slaughtering in Selchprey and the Somme.

Mrs. Thorne had two records that she played over and over on the phonograph: "There's a Long, Long Trail A-Winding Into the Land of My Dreams," and "Over There." She thought Tad probably sang them in France, and it made her feel nearer to him.

As she wound the machine and adjusted the needle the same thought was always in her mind—"Perhaps this very minute Tad is listening to these same words." The thought saddened and comforted her immeasurably, after the strange fashion of women in anguish.

She regarded Sybil mournfully. "Come to Mrs. Ward's with me tonight, dear," she invited. "There's a new way of making bandages—not cutting at all—just pulling threads. A woman from the Metropolitan Chapter is coming out to show us."

"I'm sick of Red Cross soirees," she said.

Tears flooded her mother's eyes. "I really think," she began tremulously, "I really think, Sybil, you ought to have a little more consideration—with Tad over there—and everything." She stumbled from the room and the next moment they heard her at the pho-the infantry. Shyly he introduced them to his buddies.

One of them was a tall, slim youth, with chestnut hair, bleached like gold from the sun that shone on Deven's, and blue eyes with black lashes. They had taken his books from him, and given him a gun with which to kill other boys full of promise, and a trench knife, in case he met a youth in hand-to-hand encounter and could not use his gun.

At the moment Sybil experienced only one reaction to the blond beauty of him. He thrilled her.

John Lawrence was his name. And it was plain that he was a private through accident only. Obviously he had antecedents. Family, traditions, breeding—all that sort of thing. He talked easily. Presently it developed that he had been at Yale—a second-year man. He belonged to Tad's fraternity. Mrs. Thorne became interested. Perhaps her husband—he knew Mr. Lawrence's colonel—perhaps he could help him. Officers' Training school, or something.

John Lawrence protested. Oh, no—really. He would make the grade all right. Expected, to tell the truth, to be chosen for the next training school. He was very grateful, however. Mightn't he show them around a bit? They made a tour of inspection, with young officers glancing enviously from every barracks, and Sybil the target of all admiring eyes.

In a doorway Lawrence, standing aside for the women to precede him through, put his hand on Sybil's arm. There was something in the way he did it. A possessive sort of pressure, gentle and compelling. She was only 18, and it electrified her.

BEFORE they left she had promised to write. It was a girl's patriotic duty in those days. She promised also to send some fudge and a cake, and asked if he needed sweaters or socks. That was patriotic, too.

On Sunday the Thornes motored again to Deven's, accompanied by Mr. Thorne, who handed around cigarettes grandly. He took a liking to Lawrence, and invited him down for dinner. The following week the young man obtained a 24-hour leave, and spent most of it at Thorne's place at Wannoo.

In the evening Sybil showed him the moon over the water, and walked with him along the beach. Little waves splashed mournfully on the sands, and the moon scuttled behind a cloud. The night was fearfully beautiful.

And Sybil was fearfully lovely. She stood with her face to the sea, while the wind whipped her dress of misty stuff about her, and blew her hair to John's cheek. Then he took her in his arms and kissed her.

After that Sybil braved parental displeasure and motored to Deven's every day. Her father, by permitting her to take the car, gave the affair half-hearted acquiescence. Her mother, though she admitted John "seemed like a nice, young man," frowned on the romance.

Then between Sybil and her mother there grew a rift that was common between mothers and daughters those days.

"She's just furious," Sybil told her father, "because I dare to think about John. Instead of thinking of Tad every blessed minute. Her boy's in danger—and she doesn't care anything about MINE. I'm expected to worry about Tad all the time. But I mustn't even THINK about John."

BIG UPSET HITS GOLF CHAMPS IN GOLFING MEET

Youthful Golfers Mow Down British And Yankee Veterans

BY BASIL G. WYRICK (Associated Press Golf Writer)

Bob O'Link Club Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP)—A veritable golfing holocaust swept through the first match rounds of the western amateur golf championship today wiping out all four British contenders and along with them the medalist and the defending title-holder.

And all six went out at the hands of young Americans, mostly university golfers. First went Ben Stein, of Seattle, who won the event last year by defeating Eddie Heid, of New York, on his home course. Gus Novotny of the University of Illinois, put out Stein.

Next, the coup de grace was applied to John Dawson, of Chicago, Medalist, with 72-69-141, on the 200 yard course, with a scant par of 72, by Kenneth Hiert, twice big ten champion from the University of Chicago.

And then the boys began picking on the members of the British Walker cup team, four of whom had qualified. The British champion, T. P. Perkins, was eliminated by Ira Cuch, of Chicago, once junior champion, who led all the way with near par golf. T. A. Torrance took his beating from Charles Fish, of Joliet, Ill., a University of Illinois golfer, who not only overcame a lead of 3 up gained by Torrance on the first nine, but forged ahead to victory on the home green.

Another university student, Lawrence Moller, of Quincy, had the honor and also the ability to put out "Mr. William Tweddell, 1927 British champion, 2 and 1. The son of Albin shot with a stroke of par on the first nine and became one up but the stalwart youth from Quincy soon found an opening on the homeward trip and took with an avidity that soon put him in the lead and eventually won the match.

The fourth Briton was Eustace Storey, and he fell with a thud before the vicious onslaught of Rial Rolfe of Chicago, formerly big ten champion from the University of Illinois, 3 and 2. Storey with his cross-legged putting stance took care of himself very well on the outward half, scoring par 36 and getting a 2 up lead, but he wilted in the homeward trek, going one down on the 14th and losing the next two holes.

There were some other upsets, such as the defeat of Don Moe, of Portland, who led the first qualifying round with a 66 and the ousting of Phillips Finlay of Harvard University, despite his long drives that made him a favorite.

About the only favorite who came through the maelstrom was Chick Evans, eight times holder of the title. He scored one under par on the first nine and was even on the next 8 to defeat Dick Borkenkamp of St. Louis. The best medal golf of the round was by Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, Ore., who was under par all the way. In defeating Douglas Casey, of Chicago 5 and 4, the widest margin of victory in the sixteen matches.

ARREST CATHOLICS IN MEXICO CHARGE BIG MURDER PLOT

Seven Women and Five Men Held on Conspiracy Charge

Mexico City, August 22.—(AP)—Seven women and five men, all Catholics, were under arrest today accused of having conspired to kill President Plutarco Elias Calles as well as the late President Elect General Alvaro Obregon.

Mother Superior Concepcion Acosta De La Lanza, under custody since the slaying of General Obregon in July, is charged with having been the chief plotter. The police declare the conspirators planned to kill the two officials last April by pricking them with a poisoned pin at a dance which they attended in the town of Celaya, Oregón.

First Plans Abandoned
This plan, as well as a later plot to bomb a bridge near Celaya over which Obregon and Calles were to pass, was abandoned as impracticable, it is alleged, but the conspirators continued their efforts and succeeded in slaying General Obregon.

The police attribute to Rafael Enriquez Vidal, a 22-year-old law student who is one of those arrested, the statement that he was invited to join the group, being promised entrance to heaven if he should become one of the "martyrs."

In a signed statement, Chief of Police Antonio Rios Zertuche said that Enriquez and others among those under arrest made confessions. Enriquez, he declared, told of Mother Concepcion showing him pictures of young men executed for religious activities and expressing her determination to organize another group of "martyrs."

The police statement says she told him the Pope would canonize all those who died in behalf of the church, not believing himself timber for a saint. Enriquez, the statement says, declined to join the group.

FIREMEN'S DEATH FALL INSPIRES SAFETY DEVICE
Portland, Ore.—(AP) Two firemen's recent falls to death when the snap on their safety belts tore loose has caused the Portland fire bureau to devise an improved belt for fire fighters' use.

Around the outside of the wide leather girdle runs a bronze cable, which passes through the ring by which a big snap is attached to the belt. With this added safety device around his waist, a fireman scaling a building with a burden on his back can attach the big snap to any solid project and safely free both hands for any service.

The belt, as improved by the bureau should save lives, Chief Edward Grenfell says.

HEALTHGRAMS

Three per cent of the automobile drivers are careless while 97 per cent exercise every reasonable precaution to avoid accidents. This was the conclusion of a large railroad based upon the reports of a group of its inspectors who observed in one day the approach of 26,000 automobiles to grade crossings.

While one would not be justified in drawing such a conclusion on the basis of available evidence it is probable that the 3 per cent of careless drivers are responsible for most of the great loss of life and health due to automobile accidents. One road hog or drunken driver increases the hazard of all motorists who happen to be upon the road at that time and the more crowded the highway the greater the number involved in danger.

If 97 per cent of the population exercised every reasonable precaution to avoid accidents to their health a large number of diseases that now afflict mankind would be summarily stricken from the list of evils which beset humanity. Diphtheria, for example, would certainly disappear if 97 per cent of the susceptible children were immunized with toxin-antitoxin. The benefits resulting from preventing a disease are larger, usually, than those derived from preventing an automobile accident.

Let a man of 35 or 40 who earns $2500 a year die. The economic loss to those who depend upon him is equivalent to $30,000 according to insurance statisticians of recognized standing. In other words it would take $30,000 well invested to give his family a steady income equivalent to that provided by a man of 40 who earns $2500 per year.

A considerable percentage of deaths among people between 30 and 50 are really accidental although caused by disease. Tuberculosis, heart disease, digestive disturbances and pneumonia figure prominently in the causes of mortality at these age limits and they are regarded more and more as accidental for people under fifty. A child for example, is accidentally the offspring of tuberculous parents and they not only expose him to infection but are prevented, often enough, through physical disability from providing adequately for the child's healthful living.

Taking out a diseased tonsil may be to a child's health at forty what a stop at a railway crossing is to the safety of automobile passengers. Both actions anticipate the possibilities of future danger and both give the cautious the advantage of any doubt.

The same is true of a thousand precautions concerning health. Right diet is a common lack among many children that leads to health troubles later on. Too little sleep, too much indoors and too little exercise are other common neglects that do health no good.

22 WEDDING FETES MAKE GALA HOLIDAY

Fondettes, France.—(AP)—Twenty-two diamond, golden and silver weddings celebrated the same day is the record of this tiny village of Touraine. The entire population of the country-side turned out in honor of the "old folks" and gave them a tremendous reception.

The 22 couples alone almost filled the little town-hall of Fondettes. There were speeches by the mayor, a parade through the village, and free wine for everybody. The old couples afterwards danced until midnight with the young folks on the village green.

YOU? YES, WHO CAN TELL? YOU MAY BE THE NEXT VICTIM

Not for one short second can you even delay that swinging pendulum. Ceaselessly it travels its course unmindful of whom it brings to misfortune. Wrecks, collisions, smash-ups in trains, automobiles, street cars, buggies, daily add their toll.

WATCH OUT! YOU CAN'T STOP IT—BUT YOU CAN BE PROTECTED

With story after story of such catastrophies finding their way into the columns of this newspaper every day, The Telegraph believes that would be offering a splendid service if it could find a way to protect its readers against just such misfortune at a small cost. And a way has been found. The Telegraph readers can now be protected. Indeed we are proud to advertise the fact that every Telegraph reader in this surrounding territory, both men and women, between the ages of 16 and 70 may, without delay, red tape or medical examination, purchase a

Travel Accident Insurance Policy for the Small Cost of One Dollar a Year

It is only because The Telegraph has contracted for thousands of these policies that we are able to offer them at this low price. It is a genuine travel accident policy that gives you the very protection you need. It may pay you or your family hundreds of dollars and it costs but $1.00 for a whole year's protection. Under the terms and conditions outlined in the policy it pays for death or injury of the insured sustained by the wrecking or disablement of any public or private vehicle while riding as a free or fare paying passenger.

One Will Sail With Byrd

Six of the finest Boy Scouts in the nation are these perched in the rigging of Commander Richard E. Byrd's polar ship, the Samson. Yet only one of the boys was to accompany the expedition when it sailed for the Antarctic, and to Commander Byrd went the difficult final selection. Reading down from left to right, are Jack Hirschman, Minneapolis, Minn.; Sumner Davis, Birmingham, Ala.; Donald Cooper, Tacoma, Wash.; Clark Spurlock, Eugene, Wash.; Paul Siple, Erie, Pa.; Alden Snell, Washington, D. Town's One Gift to Rockefeller

Here is the one piece of property which John D. Rockefeller hasn't had to buy, so far, in carrying out his plans for restoration of historic old Williamsburg, Va. When the owner, Clarence Casey, was asked by Rockefeller agents to name a price for the quaint old cottage, he demurred. "I'll not sell it—but I'll give it to you," he said. Casey is a Williamsburg merchant.

TUNNEY SURPRISES BRITONS WITH HIS CULTURED ENGLISH

Retired Heavyweight
Lands in England For Ireland Visit

Plymouth, England, Aug. 22—(AP)—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion, arrived on the steamship Mauretania early this morning. Tunney and a friend disembarked a mile from shore and came to land on a tender. After a hurried customs formality, the ex-boxer set out for London by automobile, through the mist and rain of a typical English day.

Before disembarking, Tunney received a group of British-American newspapermen in his cabin, answering all sorts of questions with the exception of those having to do with his coming marriage.

"Are you going to be married in England?" an English reporter asked him bluntly.

"That is a private matter. Please do not ask me about it," Tunney replied. He emphasized that he is through with boxing forever and that about everything else during his present trip to Europe he wants privacy.

My Word! So Cultured. The English people's first impression of Tunney was one of surprise due to his grammatical ability. They had expected to hear awkward phrases and in general an uneducated knowledge of the language, but as a British journalist remarked, "His words were uttered clearly and with culture."

The second impression was that Tunney is "a quiet, good looking man with a boyish, unmarked face, wearing a perpetual half smile."

Upon his arrival, the retired champion recalled his first trip to Europe. "The last time I came over," he said, "when I went to France as an American marine, my suite was not quite so comfortable as the one I had on the Mauretania. It was rather too close to the powder magazine for comfort."

As Tunney put foot on land he was welcomed with the request: "Just a moment Mr. Tunney, they want to shoot you."

"Well, this is a fine sort of welcome," Tunney exclaimed, bursting into laughter when he saw a battery of photographers lining the dock.

Tunney explained to the newspapermen that his trip is in the nature of a pilgrimage to the land of his forefathers in Ireland. He wants to go to the little village on the west coast of Ireland where his parents were born.

"I long have wanted to make some such trip to Europe," the ex-boxer said, "but I had a lot of things to do at home, like kicking Jack Dempsey a couple of times and other jobs of that sort. Now I am free from that kind of thing forever. What I would like to be is a private American citizen over here."

"The only public appearance I am going to make will be at the Tail-tannery games. I want to do anything I can to help the Irish nation." The English interviewers could not understand Tunney's reticence in regard to boxing. "The game was good to me, but I'm through with it," he said, adding emphatically: "I'm through with all this sort of thing after today—this grilling you're putting me through."

A. P. Sends Message Saluting Melville E. Stone's Birthday

New York, August 22.—The business of sending new dispatches gathered from all quarters of the globe, was momentarily halted today for a message of another kind—a salutation to Melville E. Stone, counselor and former general manager of the Associated Press, on the occasion of his eightieth birthday. The message was signed by Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, and read as follows: "Please know that on this your eightieth birthday, the members of the Associated Press and the entire staff of the organization salute you. On their behalf let me say again that each of them holds and always will hold in affectionate regard. You once told me that this regard and affection are the dearest things in your life. To this you added that the loyalty and zeal of the members and the staff has made the Associated Press the outstanding co-operative effort in the world today. This salutation on this, your birthday, carries with it assurances to you that this loyalty and zeal continue and shall continue."

LOVE FOR TWO

CHAPTER XLVIII

ROD stepped into the tiny hall and then halted abruptly. For a few seconds he fancied he had entered the wrong house. That was absurd. This was Baker's place, all right. But what was going on? Who could be here?

"Why, Baker, of course," he told himself, though still puzzled. He'd never thought about the possibility of the man having a wife. This looked like a woman's work. But it was funny they hadn't waited until he was out of the house. Perhaps they wanted him to leave at once.

He was still in the hall when suddenly he was rooted to the spot by a greeting called out to him from the kitchen. Was this an hallucination?

"Rod, is that you?" the voice sounded, a bit shaky. "Come out and help me with the steak, will you?"

Rod moved on into the living room, feeling just as he should have felt—completely bewildered. This couldn't be! Now he knew he was the victim of his own mind. His brooding over the past had brought him to the verge of insanity.

That table. He stood staring at it, without answering the voice from the kitchen. Oh, he was still too sane for that! Of course there were no places laid for two, no gorgeous red roses, and a lace cloth.

Then he sniffed. "Oh, Lord," he groaned, "do I only imagine that heavenly smell?"

"Well, aren't you coming?" The voice from the kitchen was growing impatient—just like a wife's. For answer he moved over and touched the roses. Their feel was unmistakable. Did people imagine they felt things, too—things that weren't there? Rod had a touch of panic.

HE drove out to the kitchen like a veritable madman. He would find out if he could see the owner of that voice! If he could . . . then there was no doubt about it . . . he was ready for the straight-jacket.

He saw her, standing before the kitchen table, fussing with a thick steak, and not trusting herself to look up at him. He lifted his arm and drew his coat sleeve across his eyes. Bertie Lou waited for him to say something. She heard only a half-suppressed sound of helpless misery that brought her head up with a jerk.

"Why, what's the matter with you?" she cried and rushed over as though she feared he was going to fall and she could save him. Her touch on his arm had a strange effect. What happened then was far from Bertie Lou's plans.

Rod simply took her and held her. Held her as a drowning man would hold to life. Bertie Lou could scarcely breathe. And she couldn't think at all. A humorous phrase came to her mind—"this is so sudden." It made her laugh. And the laugh, though it was barely audible for lack of strength behind it, was a sound of pure happiness. No, she was not thinking.

But she had to breathe, and when she finally struggled out of Rod's embrace she remembered in a rush all that she had forgotten in this last moment.

AND Rod remembered too. Bertie Lou belonged to Marco Palmer. Rod's eyes instantly became points of anguish of the soul so intense that Bertie Lou was compelled to look away from him.

"Why did you do that?" she said brokenly.

"Because I love you, Bertie Lou," Rod answered, his voice vibrant with emotion.

"Oh, but you don't!" she cried. "If you did you never could have believed what you told Lila!"

"Lila?" Rod repeated dully.

"Yes," Bertie Lou faced him with her head high and her cheeks aflame. "Lila told me what you saw at Marco Palmer's house. I went to her when I learned that she had been out here. Oh, Rod, she hurried on in a rush, 'how could you believe such a thing?'"

Rod stared at her a moment in dumb questioning. Then: "My God, what a blind fool I've been," he exclaimed bitterly. "Bertie Lou, you will never forgive me, will you?"

Bertie Lou sank into a chair and buried her face on her arms. Rod came over and knelt beside her. "Listen to me, please," he begged. Bertie Lou did not raise her head. Neither did she draw away from the hand he put tentatively on her arm.

"I must have been mad," he went on, "but I have some excuse, Bertie Lou. I had been disillusioned, and I was sure you didn't love me. You went away in such an unaccountable fashion; you hardly wrote—just short, cool notes. . . ."

"I knew about you and Lila," Bertie Lou interrupted in muffled tones. "I found out before I went away."

"There wasn't anything to find out then," Rod said with painful honesty.

Now Bertie Lou raised her head. "You told me a lie," she charged him reproachfully. "I asked you why you were late and you said you had worked at the office, or something. And you had been to Lila's apartment!"

"Yes," Rod admitted. "I had, but I couldn't tell you why, Bertie Lou. I didn't want to worry you."

"And you were there when I called your office just after I got that telegram from home," Bertie Lou added. "I knew then that you were in love with Lila."

"No, don't say that!" Rod pleaded. "I won't lie to you again, ever, even for your own sake. Please believe me. I didn't care much for Lila then—except that I believed her a wonderful friend. Later I thought I did. But it has been you, Bertie Lou, first, last and always since I first loved you. And there was nothing with Lila that I can't tell you about."

BERTIE LOU allowed him to take her hands. "Will you let me tell you why I lied to you?" he asked to break the silence in which she struggled for faith in him. She nodded.

Then Rod told her about the necklace and the bracelets. "She did that to cause trouble between us!" Bertie Lou cried at one point in the story. "Oh, Rod, if only you had told me why you had to save your money!"

"I couldn't when you came back from Wayville," he answered. "You had changed so. I mean I thought you had. I'm ashamed of it, Bertie Lou, but I didn't believe you would want to pay Lila the insurance money."

"I know. She had made you think I was a selfish little beast," Bertie Lou said.

"And you had a date the first night you were home," he reminded her.

"It surprised Marco more than it did you," Bertie Lou answered, smiling. "I never would have gone out with him if you hadn't told me you were having dinner with the Lorens."

And so they went on, bringing up their grievances, laying them, clearing away their misunderstandings and coming nearer to each other than they ever had before.

Suddenly Rod remembered that Bertie Lou's presence in the Baker cottage was unexplained. "Tell me how you happen to be here," he urged her.

"It's where I should be," she boasted proudly. "Right in our own home!"

She enjoyed Rod's evident perplexity, but she did not keep him long in suspense. "I had this house built with the money you sent me," she told him. "Lila did us one good turn, even if she didn't mean to. She forced us to save some money."

"But $2000 wouldn't build this house," Rod protested.

Bertie Lou put her hands on his shoulders and looked into his eyes. "Don't say it that way," she cautioned him. "It sounds as if you didn't believe me. And we must never doubt each other again. Oh, Lila. One little lie led to all the trouble we had."

"But it began before that—the night of our wedding. I asked myself if you loved me. I should have believed that you wouldn't have married me if you didn't. And I should have kept on believing it."

ROD took her hands off his shoulders and pressed them to his lips. "A man never had a sweeter bride," he told her, "but a man's a man, Bertie Lou. And that means that sometimes he's a fool. Only a wise woman can help him then. You were too proud and too good."

Bertie Lou smiled at him. "Well, try it again," she warned him, "and I'll fight for you like a fishwife."

"I think I'll stick to the hearthside," Rod replied. "But I still would like to know how you financed this house. And that doesn't mean that I think you stole the money or anything like that, but just as a matter of curiosity. . . ."

"I bought it on terms, of course, silly. And it's half yours. You were the first person to answer my ad."

"With chicken feed in my pocket! But I've got a position. I take possession of a cage on Monday. It's special work and there will be a lot of overtime, but it's with a big organization and now that I've something to work for besides bread and butter. . . ."

"Thank goodness I've found a paying tenant for this house at last," Bertie Lou applauded. "You don't know how I've worried about the future payments."

Rod laughed. "You can sell the flowers and vegetables I've grown. A lot of your five dollars a week went for food."

"Then you must have been living on crackers and cheese," Bertie Lou declared, jumping up. "And I've the loveliest dinner for you! But you will have to help me with the steak."

"I can cook it to the queen's taste," Rod assured her. Suddenly Bertie Lou paused over lifting the steak to the broiler.

"You said that the first time we cooked a meal in our own home," she reminded him.

"This is a new start, too," Rod replied solemnly. "And this time we will make a go of it, won't we, Bertie Lou?"

"Let's go right out after dinner and send telegrams to our parents," Bertie Lou suggested. "And I've got to telephone poor little Bessie Rogers. She will sit up for me if I afford. She never trusted you very much and I think she guessed that I was head over heels in love with my caretaker. And she may discover that I've brought a week-end bag. I expected you to leave tonight," she added naively.

"Tell her that you've given me the job for life," Rod said. "I'm never going to stop taking care of you again."

"For five dollars a week?"

"For love of the only girl in the world!"

OLYMPIC ATHLETES RETURN TO STATES AND BIG GREETING

Mayor Walker Upbraids Critics of the U. S. Delegation

New York, Aug. 22—(AP)—The main body of America's Olympic athletes returned today from Amsterdam aboard the liner President Roosevelt and received a noisy welcome.

While some of the athletes appeared downhearted and disappointed at the showing of their team abroad, Major-General Douglas Mac Arthur expressed the official attitude by issuing a statement in which he had high praise for the improved quality of athletic competition abroad and pointed to what he said is an unprecedented number of records broken by the American entrants to indicate the strength of this year's Olympic field.

The Olympic ship was met at quarantine by the mayor's committee, aboard the official reception boats, the Macon and Manhattan, and escorted up the bay to the accompaniment of the shrieking of sirens, tooting of whistles, the blaring of a band and blasts of water flung high into the air by a fireboat off the battery.

Because of the rain which was falling when the vessel docked it was decided to have the city's official reception to the team immediately and at the pier, dispensing with the scheduled parade up Broadway to the city hall.

Barbati in Limelight
The center of attention when the athletes debarked was Ray Barbati of Inwood, N. Y., the big ex-Syracuse University athlete who saved the United States from utter rout in the track events by winning the 400-meter run.

Ray said he did not expect to do any more running this season.

In the midst of the confusion of shouted welcomes a tragic note was struck when Miss Doris O'Mara, manager of the women's swimming team, was told of the death of her father. Three years ago while competing in a swimming race in Florida, Miss O'Mara similarly learned of the death of her mother.

Those at home who criticized the efforts of the United States delegation to the Olympic games while the latter were struggling for honors for their country were upbraided by Mayor Walker in his speech of welcome at the pier.

"We are not so big that we can afford to find fault with our own," declared the Mayor, and tremendous cheering from the Olympic party indicated its approval.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

The Giants have escaped from Cincinnati and the Cardinals have cleared their premises of Brooklyn marauders—but neither of these events transpired one minute too soon. If things had gone on much longer as they were going, one National League pennant necessarily would have been awarded to the team capable of the most expert back-pedaling, which would have brought the Phillies in for serious consideration.

Shaded at Redland field yesterday by a score of 5 to 4, the cohorts of McGraw left for Pittsburgh shorn of dignity but able to walk. The New York expeditionary force still owned a margin over the Cardinals in the pennant race only because the deceitful Dodgers nipped the Red Birds at Sportsman's Park by 3 to 2.

The situation appears even more complex for the Gants when it is realized that the Cardinals will be replacing three times with the Phillies while the Giants are staying off four runs by the Buccaneers.

The defeat of the Giants yesterday, the second in three games at Cincinnati, was due largely to Jim Welsh's uncertainty of foot as he dashed after a fly from the bat of Bill Zitzman with the bases filled in the fifth. The ball fell safe for a triple, and the Giants lost, never to regain a lead they had taken in the first half of the same round when Mellott drove in three mates with an honest triple.

Jess Petty and Watson Clark collaborated in tossing the Cardinals for another loss—the second Robin victory in the three-game series. Between them they gave the Red Birds just five hits while their support was pecking at Clarence Mitchell for just enough early runs to eke out the victory.

While the contending teams were so engaged, the Pirates got the Braves to rout again by 10 to 3 in a game which saw the Buccaneers collect sixteen hits.

In the remaining National League game, the Cubs finally broke their Philadelphia jinx after six successive failures. It took all of Art Nehf's cunning to win by 3 to 2 in twelve innings.

The American League fell behind in its half of the campaign to restore the world series to the basis of a five-cent fare for New Yorkers, thanks to the bat of Mr. Mule Haas. The Mule plucked one of Johnny Miljus' choice offerings from the ambient with his fat black bat and gave it a ride over the right field fence, winning for the Athletics by 6 to 5 in the seventeenth inning.

The Tigers swept both ends of a bargain at Boston, 7 to 6 and 4 to 3, and the Senators halted the White Sox, 2 to 0, at Washington.

LEVI CASEL—ILLINOISAN

Marion, Ill., Aug. 23—(AP)—Levi Casel, who won second in the Hop, Step and Jump at the Olympics in Amsterdam is a product of Southern Illinois, although sent to the meet by the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Casel was a student in the Marion Township High School for three years and was active in all athletics, especially track events when he moved to California.

In the Olympics he was defeated by the Japanese entrant whose distance beat Casel's by less than two inches. Casel was the only one of the four Americans to reach the finals in this event.

Friends of Casel expect him to visit Marion on his return to the United States.

TILDEN'S CASE UP

New York, Aug. 23—(AP)—"Business" will keep William T. Tilden from attending tomorrow's meeting of the United States lawn tennis association which is to consider the charges against him of violating the amateur player-writer rule. He already has presented his defense, however. In a letter to Samuel H. Collom, president of the association, Tilden denies any intention of violating either the letter or spirit of the rule.

In the letter, which he requested Collom to present at the meeting, Tilden gives his opinion of his articles on the Wimbledon championship which caused his disbarment from the Davis Cup team, to which he was later reinstated. He also offers the suggestion that to prevent such happenings in the future it should be the rule that no Davis Cup team member could write while he was a member of the team.

TO FIGHT TONIGHT
Chicago, Aug. 23—(AP)—Jack Berg, one of England's best lightweights since the days of Freddie Welch, and Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express," will meet at Mills Stadium tonight in an effort to determine which will tackle Sammy Mandell for the lightweight title.

They fought a 10 round draw here recently. Odds were even on tonight's match. Both are hard punchers and possess plenty stamina for a grueling fight.

In their last bout Petrolle piled up a wide margin in the early rounds by his body attack, only to lose it by a desperate rally by the Englishman, in the final round.
